We stayed at the Sunset Beach Resort for four nights over the fourth of July holiday this summer. It was crazy hot but with the pool and bay close by we were able to cool off when needed. We camped with some friends with "some other brand" and a bunch of tents (Ellie's volleyball folks). The place is immediately on the left as you get onto the eastern shore. Was an old run-down closed hotel for a long time - they have revitalized it nicely. Big campground, little restaurant down by the water. They did an amazing job with fireworks - as good as we've seen anywhere. They had bands playing each night. And though there was a golf cart parade of sorts each night - the place got quiet around 10pm and we slept well. The staff was very helpful and readily available to address any concern. We'll go back for sure.
